Quick Reorganization at Last Minute in Hopes of Saving
Day

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—After many conferences, leaders of the Progressive and Republican parties have agreed to unite in an effort to prevent Tammany hall from securing control of the state government of New York in all districts where Progressive candidates are running against Republican nominees for Congress. In case of capture of two or three, all Progressive alternate candidates will be chosen by the Republican organization, and the Republican organization will withdraw its assembly candidates in the legislative nominating districts.

Yesterday was the last day in which delegations could be filed with the board of elections by candidates who had been nominated for Congress in the most recent primaries, held at month's elections and several eleven-hour declinations were filed.

Mr. Oscar A. Straus, former minister to Turkey, who had been nominated for congress on the Progressive ticket, was un-nominated yesterday. Mr. Straus was nominated while he was in Europe and returned to that country only yesterday.

PLANS PUBLICATION OF COTTON SEED STATISTICS

Reports of W. J. Harris Will Be of Great Benefit to Farmers

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16.—Director Harris, of the bureau of the census, said that there is great demand for cotton statistics at present intervals of statistical concerning cotton production. This has been the practice of the bureau of the census to compile statistics for the cotton crop every year, except only twice during the ginning season. The first report on the crop of 1912, giving the quantity of cotton crushed prior to January 1, 1913. The second report will be issued prior to March 1, 1913, with an estimate of the quantity remaining to be ginned in the crop.

The statistics of cotton seed are collected in intervals of time, so that the production of cotton seed is constantly increasing and forms a much larger percentage of the total crop than ever before.

Mr. Harris believes that an additional report in intervals of time will be more complete and of interest obtained should relate to some date between October 31 and December 31, so that it will be to the most desirable date, and is accordingly corresponding with the farmers and others who took part in the work to establish it. It is hoped that all who are interested in a fixed date for the report will be consulted during the present season.

The general report will be of great value to the farmers as well as to the mills and public generally.

Police Say They Caught G. J. Weaver Robbing Safe of Typewriter Company

George J. Weaver, a salesman with experience in the typewriter business, was arrested at the recorder's court on Thursday afternoon, charged with burglarizing the office of the Oliver Typewriter Company at 51 Auburn avenue.

Last Wednesday night, policeman Gandy and his partner, Officer Tamm, were at the scene when they caught the man red-handed as he was putting the money into the safe, which had been left open by the company's safe.

The man was standing in front of the safe, the door of which was slightly open, when the officers who had crept up to the building, saw a searchlight on him.

"Don't shoot!" he exclaimed, "I am innocent."

The officers told the man to tell the manager over to the judge, and advised him to make a statement before being taken to jail.

Weaver is defiant and refuses to talk.

The real manager of the company's branch was notified of the attempted robbery, and he came to the police station to give Weaver the full limit of the law.

According to the manager, Weaver was at one time employed by one of the cast branches of the Oliver Typewriter Company.

He was last seen about two weeks ago and put up at the Hotel Preston, he presented a letter indicating he was to meet someone with the typewriter company, and told the manager here that he had been promised a job.

The National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio, allowed Weaver to make the office at 51 Auburn avenue his headquarters, and the man was arrested a week ago, according to the police.

The police charge that Weaver gained entrance to the office by climbing out of a square foot of glass in the front door, had a key to the safe, and opened it and made small changes, and was operating at the safe when a police officer saw him was playing a card game with another man.

He was then arrested, and the police charged that he was caught in the police charge.

According to the manager of the local drug store, no doubt that Weaver has no lucrative positions in the past.

The police charge that the robbery was made during a daring ever perpetrated, and declare that in their opinion it was the man's plan to get away after this first came to Atlanta.

The Little Leaf

Once upon a time a little leaf was head to and fro, as leaves often do when a gentle wind is blowing.

"The wind is the master," little leaf said.

"The tree held it to the ground while it grew."

"The tree heard it, it rustled all over."

"I am not afraid to hold on tightly, you shall not pull me away."

"The tree stopped its singing and went on rustling,

MILL CHILD UNDER AGE A RISK TO EMPLOYERS

Appellate Court Decides Damage Suit Because Its Employer Is Negligent

Any manufacturing company in Georgia which employs a child under twelve years of age in its factory, has no defense from damages in case such a child sustains injuries while engaged in the work, the state court has been told though the circumstances surrounding the accident are such as to constitute contributory negligence on the part of the employer.

The above is in substance the decision of the state court of appeals in a suit between the state of Georgia and Dalton, versus Charlie Grant. The child labor law fixes the minimum age for the employment of children at twelve years of age.

Grant was a boy of eleven years old when he was injured. He was working in the factory of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and the accident occurred on November 10, 1918.

The boy was in the basement of the factory when he fell and was injured.

The boy brought action in the state court against his employer and was awarded damages in the sum of $2,000. The cotton mill made a motion for removal and being overruled appealed the case.

In its opinion the court of appeals says:

"The employment of children under the minimum age in a factory, in disregard of the statute prohibiting such employment, is negligence per se; and it is the duty of the employer to furnish the employment, a right of action in its favor."

The court of appeals held that the defense of contributory negligence did not apply because the accident occurred in the course of the employment, a right of action in its favor.

One must admit that the present Indian summer has a "bit."

Huerta evidently intends to go the czar of Russia one better.

Among other necessities, the price of Atlanta real estate continues high.

The Greatest Corn Show.

The forthcoming announcement of premiums for the Georgia Corn Show, which is to be held in the capitol next December, will interest hundreds of young farmers throughout the State. Never before have the members of the Boys' Clubs worked with such skill and enthusiasm as during the last spring and summer. Their labor over, they are now looking forward to its recognition and reward. The State Corn Show is the great court in which their trophies of the soil are displayed and where their achievements are publicly honored. The boy who wins a prize at this exposition deserves and is sure to receive the entire commonwealth's applause.

The list of premiums for the next show is said to be unusually liberal and inviting. It will doubtless attract many more exhibitors than took part in the 1912 show, which was itself a record-breaker in popularity. Atlanta may expect the pleasure of entering a friendly army of Corn Club boys gathered from every corner of the State. The committee on arrangements is devising for the next exposition a number of new features that will appeal to the general public as well as to people more or less directly concerned in agricultural affairs. First of all, however, is being considered the interests of the corn growers themselves.

This is an enterprise that means much to the common life and progress of Georgia. Merchants, bankers, manufacturers and, indeed, every household in this State will enjoy a fair richer measure of prosperity when the production of corn and other food-stuffs is sufficient to supply the home demand. The Boys' Corn Club movement is the most effective force now at work to attain this end. Through its organized educational efforts, the yield of grain has already been increased and widespread interest in the raising of other food supplies has been heightened. The Corn Show, which marks the yearly climax of Corn Club endeavors will thus be a peculiarly important event.

The next national event will be the Thanksgiving football games.

Still, Mr. Huerta must see by now that the United States has some following among the nations of the world.

A Flight Around Manhattan.

It was just ten years ago on October the thirteenth at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, that Wilbur Wright made his memorable ascent in a heavier-than-air flying machine and ushered in a new era of aviation. The event was worthily celebrated last Monday in an aerial derby promoted and sponsored by the New York Times. Five American aviators entered the contest in which cash prizes, ranging from a thousand to five hundred dollars, were offered by the Times and silver cups by the Aeronautical Society. The flight was around Manhattan Island.

The day's atmospheric conditions were singularly unfavorable for such adventure. A forty-three mile gale was blowing. It has been truly remarked that a year ago no birdman would have hazarded such a wind. Yet, all fifty of the competitors encircled the island without mishap. Their performance evidences the substantial improvement that has been made in the aeroplane and indicates that this machine is fast emerging from its experimental stages. As the Times interestingly comments:

It is no longer a toy and it has passed the experimental stage. That it will be developed for commercial as well as military purposes is not a matter of doubt. That man in the future will navigate the air as easily as he now navigates the water is no longer to be questioned. The triumph in yesterday's race of the machines of high power is most significant, and that higher power will soon be used is a fair inference. The building of aeroplanes may not be accomplished this year or next, but the advance lately made in aeroplane construction justifies the belief that we may all sail through the air before long, if we want to.

Most of us now inhabiting the earth have no yearning for that kind of travel. Only the few intrepid souls, men with sound hearts and clean lives with no fear of high altitudes, are airmen now, with only a few of the adventurous or notoriety-seeking as their occasional companions. But a new race will be developed by the development of the aeroplane. Man will be forced to learn to fly, and he will learn, and learn well, whatever he is forced to.

The football star will now shine in the void left by the baseball player.

Mexico's Desperado.

If there was ever a vestige of reason for supposing that Huerta represented constitutional government and was entitled to recognition, it has been swept away by the desperate course he is now pursuing. Even had the United States overlooked the crime through which he usurped the Presidency of Mexico and had lent his treacherous regime a measure of diplomatic support, it could not countenance his latest tyranny. In dispersing the Congress and jailing more than a hundred of its members because they exercised the simple right of free speech, he virtually通知 his countrymen that he is their government and that all who dare dispute his dictatorship will suffer the consequence if they fall within his clutch. How fortunate for the United States that its approval was never given to this unscrupulous adventurer!

The autocracy which Huerta thus seeks to establish will of course rob the elections, announced to be held on October the twenty-sixth, of all fairness and legality. A free ballot in the territory under his control would be impossible. More than half the country is said to be in open revolution and certainly the people in those districts would not accept a President or other officials chosen at Huerta's behest. In truth, there is no hope for a peaceful settlement of Mexico's domestic troubles so long as this desperado remains in power at the capital. He himself is too weak to restore orderly government and he is too vicious to give others a chance to do so.

The first step in the welfare of the Mexican Republic must be the complete elimination of Huerta. That end may be accomplished by a concert of diplomatic action between the United States and other interested Powers. Sufficient pressure of this kind might force the dictator to step down. It may be that the revolutionary forces themselves will soon fight their way to the capital and, once they are within its borders, the taking-off of Huerta will shortly follow. His present course betrays his weakness. His specious government is without funds; his remnant of the army is sullen almost to the point of mutiny; his character is now seen in its unmasked baseness by the European Powers that once were disposed to encourage or, at least, to tolerate him.

Time is the old Justice that tries all such offenders as Huerta, and its heavy sentence is hanging just above his head.

The Conquest of Forest Fires.

The value of organized effort for the prevention of forest fires is strikingly attested by the fact that this year only some sixty thousand acres of the national woodland were burned as against two hundred and thirty thousand in 1912 and seventy hundred and eighty thousand in 1911. The methods of the forestry service in dealing with this problem which at one time was so dangerous and baffling have steadily improved and what is equally important the co-operation of settlers and timberland owners with government officers has become continually more cordial. The country is thus being saved thousands of acres of natural treasure and potential wealth that is beyond reckoning.

The causes of forest fires this year are said to have been, first, railroads and then lightning, while a considerable number have started from the burning of brush. Those due to lightning, though beyond the power of human prevention, have been rendered far less disastrous by the system of lookouts who detect such fires and take prompt measures to check them. Such service is of inestimable benefit. The destruction or damage of nearly a million acres of the nation's forest within a single twelve-month, as was the case three years ago, was due cause for alarm. The significant fact is that this loss has been reduced comparatively to a minimum by means of organized effort.

The same methods, if adapted to the prevention of fire waste in general, will yield equally gratifying results. In the United States last year the property loss from fires amounted to two dollars and fifty-five cents per capita while in Germany it was only twenty cents per capita. The difference is mainly on account of superior regulation on the part of the Old World country. Our Government's successful fight against forest fires should inspire an earnest and hopeful campaign for the prevention of all other fires.

Progressive Kirkwood.

The people of Kirkwood are to be congratulated on their virtually unanimous support of a bond issue for the improvement of schools, pavements and sanitary service. At the election held Wednesday, fewer than fifteen voters opposed this enterprise. The rank and file of property owners were ardently in its favor.

This is a substantial tribute to the progressive nature of Kirkwood and will do much to advertise the advantages and uphold the interests of that already thriving community.

It was Charles II of England who, in 1670, gave to the world the day when revolution begins: a sharp line was drawn on the globe and gave all on one side to Spain and all on the other to France.

The French, who despised their territory, until the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, by which France resigned her claim.

Then followed what was perhaps a fiercer war, as a result of which the rebels had to give up their plan to govern an empire of forest, field, forest and water, of which they had no conception.

A Diamond Means Strength and Beauty

A diamond's strength and beauty gives it leadership over all other gems.

The King of Jewels is practically indestructible and its beauty and purity are unassailable.

From time before history was written the diamond has adorned the kings and queens of men and been the mark of power and beauty the world over.

The person who buys a diamond should be sure of perfection. Only perfect knowledge and trained eyes can detect faulty facings in clever settings.

Our business life has been devoted to building up a reputation that would stand as the most perfect diamond. We could no more afford to send a diamond from our store under a misapprehension as to its value than we could afford to scratch the facets of our rarest gems.

You can place absolute reliance on the word of Eugene V. Haynes Company in buying diamonds.

Brilliant Wedding of Prince Arthur and Duchess of Fife

(By Associated Press) LONDON, Oct. 15.—A brilliant and gay wedding ceremony was held at the Chapel Royal of St. James Palace Wednesday. With such a setting of orange and gold, the uniforms of the men presented, with the uniforms of the men who served as ushers and page boys, and the jewels worn by the ladies, the ceremony was indeed a gathering of royalties and nobility.

But compared with the wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Teck, daughters of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and Princess Mary, the little daughter of Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck, their gowns were simple and military display, the ceremony was as simple as adherence to tradition.

Partly because of mourning for the recent death of the Queen Mother, the bride's dress was a brocade in being joined by hardships suffered in being shipwrecked on the coast of Norway, and she was dressed in the colors of the bride and groom, who are constitutionally adverse to war.

The bridegroom, the diplomat, was Ambassador Walter H. Page and Mrs. Page. The bridegroom's parents of Sweden, the two attendants as relatives and two maidens of honor, the only persons who wore neither a decoration nor a diamond.

Among those present were Lady Delmé, widow of Lord Alastair Innes-Ker, formerly Miss Anne Bream.

The parents of the bride, Prince John, the king's youngest son, and Prince Olaf, Norway's popular favorite in England.

The Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Cambridge, the King's brother.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, the highest dignitary of the Church of England, and the representative service was represented by the Bishop of London and Canon Edgar, Subdean of the Chapel Royal.

During the ceremony the king and queen and the Duke and Duchess of York, exactly facing the altar and close behind the bride and bridegroom.

In a room close by a small room, accommodating about ten people, the ceremony was begun at noon and was conducted by Canon Arthur.

After the ceremony the bride and other persons who took part in the ceremony, including the bridegroom, were received in royal carriages, and the company, including the ambassadeurs, were marshaled to their seats by high officials in their respective uniforms.

They remained until the minute.

Prince Arthur, a young man of twenty-four, in his uniform as a captain of the Royal Scots Greys, and the ribbon of the gallantry, was the most conspicuous figure.

The uniform of the Prince of Wales was also prominent. The bridegroom was the little and tarts of the Seaforth Highlanders, of whom he is a son-in-law.

There were three state processions, the first being the bridegroom, the second, the bride, and the third, the grand stairway into colour.

The church, a diamond-shaped hall, was filled with women dressed in white, lace and necklaces of pearls.

The bride entered the chapel between King George and her mother. She was dressed in a dainty dress of white chintz and her bridegroom took up their robes three until December.

Roan-Powell

The marriage of Miss Luella Roan to Mr. Joseph W. Powell, of Louisville, Kentucky, was held at the Hotel Roosevelt, October 15, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Sarah Roan, in Negroes, Ga., the Rev. O. F. Cook officiating.

The wedding was a family affair, the entire lower floor being thrown open and decorated for the occasion with carnations, sunflowers and roses. The ceremony was performed in the living room before a small audience, piano and organ music.

The wedding party consisted of the bridegroom, his mother, Mr. and Mrs. Powell, his mother, Mr. and Mrs. Roan, his brother, Mr. Len K. Roan, and was met at the door by the bride's brother, Mr. J. J. Willingham, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. O. F. Cook.

The bride was dressed in a white muslin of blue with bat and gloves to match the blue plaid carnation.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell left on the Dixie Flyer for a trip through Tennessee and Georgia, and upon their return they will make their home in Douglas.

Hugh Mauck Will Not Play on Tech Football Team

Tech's Regular Varsity Plays For Ala. Game Next Saturday

Atlanta Fans Will Have First Opportunity to See Full Line-Up on the Field

Wednesday afternoon the Tech varsity took their last hard scrimmage before the game with Mercer on next Saturday. The game will commence at Thursday, run regular Friday and Saturday. Saturday is the day when the Red and Black will meet the hundred so far this season and, in comparatively speaking, is an assured victory.

Of course the game with Alabama will be the most important of the year, with Virginia at Fomée de Leon on October 23rd, and the Tech will play a great many other condition than they are now.

At the present time not many more men could be hurt and still leave a team at the university. Practically every man has had a sprain or strain from sprains. This is no cry of alarm. The men are really well, but the injury may not get jinxed at one time is not known.

The scrub at Tech has really got a good organization and it is worth Coach Alexander knows the Heisman system of playing football.

In certain degrees, his combinations are enough to try the shrewdness of a man like Hugh Mauck, who is running the team at the quarter-back position.

He and his men know just what his team and just what the scrub team can do. The Tech has been greatly handicapped by the lack of substitutes and by injury to the regulars, the scrub's quarter-back. He is a lively fellow, but such like him better than any man on the field considering he is not a good player.

The Tech Saturday will be good to go to get a nail-biting game, but the Tech is a mauler.

Harding was some player in his day and he will have a good team when he is back.

The team that will carry the colors of Tech the remainder of the day and will this be their first appearance together before an Atlanta audience.

They will be given a chance to see the Cook, McDonald, Patten, Johnson, and others of the Tech team.

With Press and Cushman on the ends there should be something doing all the way.

Georgia Ready For Ala. Game

Game Saturday Will Be Hardest of Season So Far, With Virginia Next on Tap

(Special Dispatch to The Journal) ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 16.—Georgia saw one of the hardest fields, and the Red and Black are about primed for the struggle with Alabama.

The performance Wednesday was a no, and Georgia must now catch up with the weakness of both teams, and Thursday, these will be remedied by a light rain.

Touchdowns will be put on the big team for the first real game of the season.

Up to now the men have been more than the team get in practice with the same game every afternoon with eleven men on each side, referees and all that goes with it.

The scrub at Tech has really got a good organization and it is worth Coach Alexander knows the Heisman system of playing football.

In certain degrees, his combinations are enough to try the shrewdness of a man like Hugh Mauck, who is running the team at the quarter-back position.

He and his men know just what his team and just what the scrub team can do.

The Tech has been greatly handicapped by the lack of substitutes and by injury to the regulars, the scrub's quarter-back.

He is a lively fellow, but such like him better than any man on the field considering he is not a good player.

PRINCETON'S BOOTING SPECIALIST

In one respect college football is similar to organized baseball—men are distributed evenly in the various positions of the team, but the majority fade.

But in New, right half of the Tigers,

Trainer Kenneth Fitzpatrick, once side partner of Harry T. East, of the Indians, believes he has discovered one of those football marvels who spring into the blue-light and stay.

East is a natural kind of athlete and is able to get over ground

he has won him, temporarily at least, a place in Princeton's varsity backfield, where showed Fitzpatrick expects to see him in the great game against Yale.

sprains. This is no cry of alarm.

The Tech was given plenty of time to get ready for the game.

It is not the Tech, but the scrub's quarter-back that is the problem.
